

THE JOSEPH J PETERS INSTITUTE

AND THE

PHILADELPHIA SOCIETY OF CLINICAL PSYCHOLOGISTS ARE PLEASED TO OFFER:

@helpingprofessionals: "Understanding, Assessing, and Intervening with Problematic Sexual Behavior of #youthonline"

You may not have time to keep up with new technologies - but adolescents do! This workshop will discuss the online sexual behavior of youth and the vulnerabilities associated with youth developing online problematic behavior. Youth are at high risk for both exploiting others online and being victims of online sexual exploitation. This workshop will provide a live, online demonstration of areas on the internet where youth engage in sex online. Participants will be introduced to technologies such as peer-to-peer file sharing, Twitter, Pinterest, chat rooms, online gaming, and Second Life. Implications for youth accessing these venues will be discussed, including the ways online sexual experiences may impact developmental issues and offline behaviors. The psychology of the internet will be used to help understand why many youth find themselves in trouble online. Practical suggestions for assessment, management, and intervention for all helping professionals will be presented.

Date: October 5, 2012
Place: Public Health Management Corporation
260 S. Broad Street
Philadelphia, PA 19110
18th floor Board Room
Time: 9:00 a.m. – 4:15 p.m.

Learning Objectives:

Upon Completion of this training, participants will be able to:

- Discuss the various methods and venues of youth online sexual behavior
- Recognize unique aspects of the Internet and how it influences youth online sexual behavior
- Recognize how developmental issues of youth influence their online sexual behavior
- Screen and assess for exploitive and problematic online sexual behavior in youth
- Manage and intervene with youth whose problematic online sexual behavior is out of control
